PRICES ARE SMASHED

Brought About by Continuance of Tuesday's Slump.

IS CAUSED BY CALLS

Anaconda, With a Decline of Fourteen Points, Was the Most Conspicuous, but Others Go Away Down.

New York, May 2.—Prices were smashed at the opening of the stock market Wednesday, the result of continuance of selling, which began Tuesday afternoon. The rush to dispose of securities seemed to indicate that liquidation of an important character were under way and speculative holders of stocks in general became alarmed and made a precipitate rush to get out of the market Wednesday morning. The forced selling was caused by calls for additional margins over night from brokers, to which responses Wednesday morning were lacking or were unsatisfactory. Congested selling orders resulted in some wide variations of prices on simultaneous sales at opening, and orders to sell at market in other stocks found no bids, but at concessions of many points.

Anaconda, with a 14-point break, was the most conspicuous instance. Northern Pacific opened 5 points down. There was one sale of 300 shares of Union Pacific at 142, compared with 142¾ Tuesday night, but a stream of 8,000 shares immediately followed all the way from 141¾ to 140. Twenty-five thousand shares of United States Steel went simultaneously at 58¼ and 37, compared with 39 Tuesday night. Colorado Fuel broke 3 points; Great Northern preferred, 3½; Reading, Illinois Central, Smelting, Delaware and Hudson Locomotive, lead and pressed steel stocks, 2 to ; Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste Marie, 4¼; Manhattan, 4, and Pullman, 7½.

Losses up to 2 points were numerous throughout the list. An immediate rebound, reaching 1 to 1½ in speculative leaders, and 4½ in Northern Pacific, followed the first staggering blow at the market.

At the Stock Exchange it was believed the opening break represented further liquidation by certain large operators who were caught by Tuesday week's slump. This, together with short selling by prominent traders and absence of support by big banking interests, accelerated the decline. Toward 11 o'clock the market rallied sharply and some shares sold above Tuesday night's prices.

Early rate on call money was 6 per cent.

The market rallied shortly after noon and there was a substantial recovery in the stock list. Before 1 o'clock, however, its started down, the gains being lost, while some active issues went lower than before the rally. Call money advanced to 12 per cent.

PARIS' BIG BLAZE.

Paris, Tex., May 2.—Fire destroyed a large portion of the east side of the square at 3 o'clock this morning.

The flames originated in Murphy's drug store, and it and the following other concerns suffered: Freeze saloon, Bedford & Crooks' book store, Brmback's jewelry store and Hood's photograph gallery. Three large buildings were completely destroyed and half a dozen others damaged. The property loss, which is covered by insurance, will reach $100,000.

Paris, Tex., May 2.—Lamar county was storm swept Tuesday night and Wednesday morning. Three residences and the large Methodist church were destroyed at Petty, six houses had their roofs blown off, one barn was destroyed, two smokehouses demolished and two mules killed.

TORNADO IS TERRIFIC

Brown, Denton and Grayson Counties Damaged.

SOME LIVES ARE LOST

At Stoney Joe Foster's Residence Was Blown Down, Ruins Catch Fire and Head of Family Fatally Burned.

Dallas, May 2.—A tornado swept over parts of Brown, Denton and Grayson counties late Tuesday afternoon, doing great damage to crops and farm property. Two persons are known to have been killed and probably two others.

At the village of Cowan, in Wise county, one house was destroyed and Mrs. Parks was killed. Two other occupants of the house were so badly injured that they may die.

At Stoney, in Denton county, the house of Joe Foster was blown down on the family and the ruins took fire. Mrs. Foster and the children crawled out of the ruins safely, but Mr. Foster was pinned down by heavy timbers, and before rescuers could get him out with an axe he was so badly burned that he hied.

At Sherman a Methodist church was blown down, and at Brownwood several houses were partly wrecked.

OFFER OF SYNDICATE.

Will Advance One Hundred Million Dollars to San Francisco.

San Francisco, May 2.—The first definite proposition for furnishing money on a large scale to San Francisco for the purpose of rebuilding one of the burned sections was made public Tuesday when it was announced that a syndicate of New York capitalists had agreed to advance $100,000,000. The news came in a telegram received by W. F. Herry, chief counsel for the Southern Pacific, from Senator Newlands of Nevada, who has a large interest in the burned Palace hotel. Senator Newlands stated that he ha submitted the plan to many financiers, nd that they had virtually consented to supply the money on a bond and mortgage basis. The names of the New York people are not given. The offer is under discussion by the local finance committee.

It was decided that the citizens' committee would accept all offers of aid from foreign countries. This decision was reached when a communication was received through Japanese offical sources asking if the citizens would receive the contribution of 200,000 yen, made by the emperor of Japan, and declined by the United States government. The finance committee held that San Francisco, being essentially a cosmopolitan city, it was necessary for it to care for many destitute foreigners, and that it would be proper under these circumstances to accept all outside tenders of assistance.

MOVEMENT CURTAILED.

Father Sherman's Trip Will Be Just to Resaca, Ga.

Washington, May 2.—The president has directed the curtailment of the movement of the Twelfth cavalry as escort to Rev. Father Thomas S. Sherman, son of General Sherman, on a march over part of the line of General Sherman's march to the sea. Instead, the trip may be made from Fort Oglethorpe as far as Resaca, which is within about fifty miles of Fort Oglethorpe, when the cavalry detachment is to return to the latter place.

Orders to this effect were given following the receipt of a long distance message from Brigadier General Duvall, commanding the department of the Gulf, by whose authority the detachment was ordered to accompany Father Sherman, and a conference on the subject between President Roosevelt and General Bell, staff of the army.

Another report was that Mr. Foster was still alive at midnight Tuesday night, but could not recover.

The tornado also visited Alvord, Johnson county. The house of Jud Parker was wrecked, and his mother killed. The rest of the family escaped injury. Several houses were blown off their foundations. The section house was unroofed and the depot agent blown to the ground.

WORST IN YEARS.

Wind and Rain Did Damage at Ardmore and Vicinity.

Ardmore, May 2.—One of the severest wind and rainstorms in many years visited this section Monday night, doing damage in many parts of the city. The Catholic school was blown off its foundation and damaged. The residence occupied by Joe Mullineaux was blown from its foundation and Mrs. Mullineaux injured about the face and arms by being thrown violently against a well.

Dr. Keating Dies.

Cleburne, May 2.—Dr. J. R. Keating, ex-mayor of this city, died at 2:20 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. He was seventy-one years old. He came here in 1873. He was alderman and mayor for a number of years, and was also a practicing physician of ability.

Bryan Parties Have Ordered a 35-Horse Power Automobile for Bryan-College Service.

Carrying out plans which they have had under advisement for some time, Bryan parties have placed an order for a 35-horse power automobile bus to be operated on a regular schedule between Bryan and College, and available for reaching the other schools at regular intervals.

The car has five seats, each accommodating four persons, or a total of twenty people. It is one of the best machines of the kind manufactured, and is listed at $2200.

This insures two fine automobile bus lines to College. Now there should be a concerted effort for a better Bryan and College road.

THE FIRE.

About 1 o'clock this morning fire destroyed the parsonage of the Italian Catholic church together with nearly all the contents, only a few books, etc., being saved. The house was occupied by Rev. Milletello and Rev. Damiana, who is here from Beaumont, and a boy nomed Ferdinand Magri. The boy escaped by leaping through a window.

The origin of the fire could not be definitely learned this morning, and the fire was well under way before an alarm could be given, owing it seems to the lateness of discovery and difficulty in reaching a telephone. In consequence the firemen arrived too late for service except in checking and preventing the spread of the flames in the vicinity.

The unusually high wind carried showers of burning sparks and fragments clear across the east part of town, as far as S. H. Franklin's residence, according to report. Much property was menaced and housetops were manned by bucket brigades and men with garden hose.

The house was a two story frame structure and burned rapidly, soon falling in, when for a short time there was a veritable rain of fire along the spark course.

The loss and amount of insurance could not be definitely learned this morning. Loss is probably $3500 and the insurance sufficient to cover most of it.

DISCUSSED BY DANIEL.

Virginia Senator Makes a Speech on Railroad Rate Bill.

Washington, May 2.—The proceedings in the senate Tuesday included an extended discussion of the railroad rate bill by Mr. Daniel, an explanation of the status of the appropriation for the relief of the earthquake sufferers of California by Mr. Allison and a controversy among sever aslenators os to the propriety of adopting without referring to a committee a resolution tendering the thanks of congress for his services in rescuing the body of John Paul Jones from their long lest resting place in Paris. In the last mentioned proceedings Mr. Aldrich opposed action by the senate in advance of committee consideration, and succeeded in having the measure referred to the committee on foreign relations.

COTTON MEN MEET.

Growers and Manufacturers Hold First Conference.

Washington, May 2.—The first international conference of cotton growers and cotton manufacturers began a two days' session here Tuesday.

A permanent organization was effected, the following officers being elected:

President—James R. McColl, president of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers.

First Vice President—Harvie Jordan, president of the Southern Cotton association.

Second Vice President—R. M. Miller, president of the American Cotton Manufacturers' association.

Third Vice President—J. W. McCallister of the International Federation.

Secretaries—Richard Cheatham, C. J. Woodbury and C. B. Bryant.

President McColl opened the proceedings by a brief address, in which he expressed the view that the meeting would throw much light on the problems that confront the cotton industry in this country, and at the same time assist in a better understanding among the representatives of the several interests. Among these problems he enumerated the question of an ample supply of cotton for the world's needs, the stability of price, speculation, the better handling of cotton and the accuracy of government crop reports.

The afternoon session was presided over by Harvie Jordan, who addressed the conference on the cotton industry generally. He gave credit to the spinners and manufacturers for initiating the conference, and said that in considering the returns between the growers and spinners what ever affected the cotton production would react disastrously upon the spinning industry, and vice versa. The growers and spinners, he added, had been strangers too long.

The south, he said, was rapidly waking up to the realization that at present, and, and, ideed for all time, it controlled, and can continue to control, the practical monopoly of the world's cotton production. He emphasized the fact, however, that there was no disposition to abuse this monopoly or unrighteously take advantage of so splendid an endowment. But he asserted that the cotton growers of the south would henceforth insist upon upon and enforce the payment of a fair and profitable price for cotton.

"The day of producing cheap raw cotton," he declared, "at from 6 to 8 cents per pound is passed."

Speculating in cotton futures he regarded as the greatest evil of modern times. "It overrides," he said, "the will of the manufacturers and subjects the growers to a condition of helpless servitude well night bordering upon slavery."

Speculation should be regulated and minimized, he contended, and the duty of the Federal and state governments was to enact needed reforms.

The balance of the session was taken up with a discussion regarding the question of standard square bales and for more careful ginning.

CHLOROFORM INHALATION.

Effects of Embalming Fluid Difficult Matter to Determine.

New York, May 2.—Expert testimony was heard Tuesday in the hearing of Albert T. Patrick's motion for a new trial as to the effects of embalming fluid in concealing evidence of death by inhalation of chloroform. Dr. Albert T. Wesson, a coroner's physician, testified in Patrick's behalf, and said that he had injected embalming fluid into the bodies of twelve persons before making an incision of the lungs, and that he was satisfied that the fluid made entry into the lungs, and would make it difficult to determine whether death had been caused by breathing in an irritant vapor, chloroform included.

BITTEN BY BULLDOGS.

Lady Was So Frightfully Injured Death Is Almost Certain.

Paris, Tex., May 2.—Mrs. James Crow, a young married woman, was so badly bitten by two bulldogs at the home of her father-in-law, near May's Prairie, that she will die. One brute caught her in the trhoat and the other in a limb. It was almost impossible to get the animals to relinquish their hold. The lady's sister-in-law had told the dogs to get a stick, and they thought she had sicked them on Mrs. Crow.

Three Roses and Another

By JOANNA SINGLE

Dr. John Dunham knew what he did not want. He could also instantly recognize what he did want when he saw it. These traits had been of use to him in working his way through college, through medical school after that and into a flourishing practice now two years old.

In love as in business it was the same, only the girls he had thus far met were undoubtedly the ones he did not want. Dr. John's black gray eyes were always on the silent quest of an unknown girl the thought of whom he linked with the thought of roses. She did not appear. He was thirty-two and beginning to think he had missed her and was deciding to devote his spare time entirely to rose culture when the no longer expected happened.

In September he went, with a colleague, Frederick Mayne, M. D., to a medical convention in St. Louis. Seated at the formal banquet, he looked up, just across the table, at her! And then he seemed to have always known that she was small and blond, with the sweet delicacy of a pink tea rose, that her head was poised like a flower and that breeding and courage showed in every feature and gesture.

Instantly the thought of her as his mounted to his head like wine, and his look met hers with an intensity that made her eyes droop. He turned coolly to Mayne beside him and said in a low tone:

"Look carefully at this ring on my finger, and don't glare up. I want to ask a question. Who is she?"

Strangely enough, Mayne knew who "she" was.

"Dean Carroll's daughter, Rose," he replied. Then as they both looked up carelessly he continued, "I may as well tell you that I shall try to get her." Choking back a senseless anger, trying to realize that Mayne had as good a right to want her as he, Dunham answered quietly:

"And I may as well tell you that you have me to work against. I shall do my best."

At the reception following John Dunham accosted his old professor, Dean Carroll, shook hands and asked:

"Doctor, please introduce me to your daughter."

"Certainly, my boy—with pleasure. But"—and the old man laughed—"I warn you!"

"It's everlastingly too late, doctor. All I ask of you is not to tell her I wanted to meet her and—not to praise me to her." The serious eyes of the young man checked the old man's smile.

"Upon my soul! I believe you're in earnest!"

"I warn you that I am." Dean Carroll looked Dr. John Dunham over carefully from head to foot. Then he held out his hands.

"I wish you luck," he said slowly. "You're as open now as you were during the four years I knew you at college and in your success since. Your tactics are worthy of a general and victory. Come along. But perhaps you'd like me first to suggest to her that you're a dangerous character?" John laughed contentedly.

"Better that than encomiums."

Rose Carroll met her father's old pupil none the less graciously because he was tall and strong and because the heavy, dark hair framing his handsome face was touched with gray. In fact, he was so interesting that she met him with an armor of protective resistance beneath her graciousness. She was used to easy victories over her admirers, but not anxious, though she was on the alert, for her own Waterloo. There was time enough for that.

John began well. While deferential, he was not adoring; while entirely appreciative, he was not insistent in his enjoyment of her society, which he accepted with a sort of seemingly transient spirit of camaraderie that piqued her a little. Several times during the evening he drifted carelessly back near her and watched with amusement Mayne's breakneck endeavor to make use of his time to impress his rather ponderous personality upon the girl. Dunham asked permission to call next day.

He did call and was carelessly entertaining. He let himself go, showing his real self, speaking of his youthful adventures in the west, of his roses at home and leaving a sort of an impression that he was a man into whose life women had entered little and that they were to him a sort of pleasant relaxation from workaday cares.

Rose found herself putting forth unusual efforts to please this man, who was not, as others, apparently in the least subjugated by her charms. He did not stay long, but as he arose to go he unwrapped a long, slender parcel he had been holding, crushed the tissue paper in his fingers and put one perfect white rose into her hand. He laughed down into her eyes.

"I wanted to give you a red one, only"— The significance of his tone and his hesitation made her rise to his throw.

"Only you didn't dare!" she finished for him.

"Oh, I dared," he replied coolly, "but I thought I wouldn't—yet! The best for the last, you know!" And he left her trying to decide whether he meant anything or nothing. As he went out he met Mayne entering with a large florist's box, and during his call he had learned that she was leaving the next day for home. When he reached his office he looked up the northbound trains.

Next morning at 7:55 he walked up to the station. Just around the corner on the platform he saw Rose Carroll smiling at Mayne, who carried her suit case and a great bunch of pink carnations. Before they saw him he stepped back into the waiting room, bought a ticket to the next town north and kept out of sight until the train came in. He swung on the rear platform, while Mayne, triumphant in his moment of favor, put the lady into a seat and bestowed her luggage about her. As the train pulled out Dunham looked from his window in the smoker and beheld the idiotically adoring face of Mayne, who was waving his farewell.

When he had smoked a long black cigar John Dunham sauntered into the next car. About the middle of the aisle he stopped suddenly at a quick exclamation:

"Why, Mr. Dunham!"

He looked down and saw, with apparent surprise, Rose Carroll, blushing and smiling. He removed his hat, but made no effort to take the seat which she had cleared for him beside her.

"Miss Carroll! So this is your train—how pleasant! Lovely day, isn't it?"

"Won't you sit down?" she asked, a little timidly. And he did and went on talking so carelessly and yet so meaningly, so brightly and still so seriously, that it seemed to her but a moment or two before he looked from the window and stood up. Drawing a slender parcel from his pocket, he unwrapped a single, long stemmed pink rose.

"I must get off here in order to get back to an important case with your father. I only got on to tell you goodby. Didn't want to interfere with Mayne at the station. I can't compete with this floral generosity," and he laid the rose in her lap, "but this is to remind you that some day I shall bring you that red rose." He was gone, without touching her hand in farewell. She sat gasping—pleased, astonished, half angry, but completely interested. She looked at the pink rose. Then she tossed the carnations from the window and wondered how in the world John Dunham had managed to obtain her promise to answer his letters.

Thereafter Dunham wrote her—not regularly, but when the fancy seemed to seize him—whimsical, vigorous, joyful, masculine letters, wholesomely free from all lovemaking. She answered, and sometimes when he was very busy he called her up on the long distance phone in lieu of a letter. Meantime Mayne had sent bushels of flowers, had written ponderously sentimental epistles and heaved many ponderous sighs. Twice he had gone to see his divinity, and on his last call her lack of interest in his elaborate mention of Dunham raised suspicion in his slow but relentlessly logical mind. On his return he sauntered into Dunham's office.

"Morning, old man."

"Morning, Mayne. Enjoy your visit?" How the deuce did Dunham know he'd been away? Mayne hazarded a guess.

"Yes, called on Miss Carroll. Write to her, don't you?" Taken off guard, Dunham admitted the soft impeachment and was instantly sorry. Mayne laughed with unctuous amusement.

"Thought you were too astute for that. Bet she's got you going—has me! Stringing you for all she's worth! Practiced hand! Great girl—no end popular. Knows how to do it, Miss Carroll." Dunham's anger rose, but he answered carelessly:

"Look to yourself, Mayne. Guess I can take care of Johnny." But after Mayne went the tide of his anger surged toward Rose Carroll. When he could stand it no longer he went to the phone, closing the door of the inner office, and called up St. Louis and Miss Carroll. After an hour's delay he got her and went straight to the point.

"That you, Miss Carroll? Know who this is? Yes! Lovely spring day! I want to ask you something. Forgive my bluntness, but I must know. Miss Carroll, in your letters and all have you meant everything or have you been playing with me?" A long pause, while he listened intently.

"No, I did not think so—I simply asked. I have not the time nor the temper to play. You will forgive me for asking you? No, I can't tell you what made me think of such a thing. Yes, some day I will. Certainly I believe you! What? May I? May I come this week? Of course I want to! But I can't reach you till Saturday evening and will have to start back Sunday morning. It's a long way, and connections are bad. All right—goodby—till Saturday!"

At 4 in the afternoon of June 1 John Dunham stepped from his train at St. Louis and went to a hotel to get rid of his travel stains and appease his hunger.

About 7 he emerged faultlessly attired, visited a florist and took a cab to Dean Carroll's stately old home.

Rose came to him in the dim candlelight of the library, a vision in shimmering gray. He had intended meeting her in his usual easy way, but the clamor of his heart and the wine of a certain proud yielding in the glance of her blue eyes swept him into speechlessness. He stood long looking at her, her hand still in his. Then he dropped the small hand back at her side and strode out into the hall.

In a moment he came back and clasped her warm little fingers about the stem of a glowing red rose.

"The red rose," he said simply—"the time for it is now, isn't it?" he questioned quietly, stepping back with his arms straight at his side to look at her. "Isn't it time, dear?" he insisted.

"Yes," she murmured. "I"— And as she did not finish, with a sudden longing he held out both his hands to her. "Will you come, Rose?" With the pride of a small queen, Rose Carroll laid her two hands in his.

THE MARKETS.

CATTLE AND HOGS.

Special to The Eagle.

Stock Yards, Kansas City, Mo., April 30.—Only a few cattle arrived in the quarantine division last week after Monday, but such as came got the benefit of the advance of a round 25 cents made after the middle of the week. Supply in the quarantine division today is 36 loads, all of it fed stuff, but nothing included above fair to good quality. Top steers today $4.85, several bunches at $4.60 to $4.75, but most of the steers at $4.15 to $4.55. Everything is stears today. In the native division, although the run is liberal, the market is steady today, holding the advance made last week. Each week recently a big run Monday and Tuesday has been followed by small receipts and a higher market later in the week, and this may be the case this week. All hands were empty of cattle today, and buyers were out early and bought liberally. Receipts naturally dwindle at this season, although a certain number of cattle in native territory are always fed for the May market. Southern Texas will not furnish as many in May this year as last.

Hog run last week was 52,000 head, supply today 10,000, market 5 to 10 lower today, top $6.42½, bulk of sales $6.25 to $6.40, light weights up to $6.32½, pigs $5.25 to $6.00. The market was lower the middle of last week, but best hogs sold at $6.50 Saturday, and it looks like receipts of aronnd 50,000 hogs per week can be handled at the high level now ruling. Supply for April shows a gain of 40,000 head over last April, and prices have averaged $1.00 higher, which indicates the strength of the demand.

J. A. Rickhart,
Live Stock Reporter.

Rewarded Him.

"Excuse me, mum. I was goin' to try to git you interested in a face lotion that 'ud make the ugliest skin beautiful, but I see you don't need nothin' like that."

"Well—er—I think I'll buy a box of it for a friend of mine."—Houston Post.

Different.

Mrs. Brown—She seems to have got over the death of her first husband. Mr. Brown—Yes, but her second husband hasn't.

Wise men, though all laws were abolished, would lead the same lives.—Aristophanes.

Wasn't to Be Fooled by a Sign.

An old fellow from one of Portland's most remote suburbs, while passing a certain hardware store in that city the other day, noticed a sign which read, "Cast Iron Sinks." The old fellow chuckled softly to himself; then, gradually, as the absurdity of it dawned upon him more forcibly, he broke into a loud guffaw. A passerby, attracted by the apparently unseemly mirth of the old man, made bold to ask what amused him so. "Why, gol durn it," he sputtered between spasms, "ef some folkses air not gettin' ter be reg'lar durn fules. The idee uv hangin' up er sign tellin' people that 'cast iron sinks.'"—Lewiston Journal.

Keep Your Temper.

The unwritten laws both of society and good manners are innumerable, but there is one that we cannot pass over in silence, and that is—never lose your temper. This applies especially when playing games. To lose one's temper in private is bad enough, but to do so in public is unpardonable. It is a crime which no hostess can forgive, for it makes all the other guests feel uncomfortable and disturbs that outward calm which is the essence of all good society.

Self Possession.

Without a tremor Mrs. Highmore preceeded leisurely to open the black bordered letter. "If there were any bad news," she said, "it would have come by telegraph. It must be that something has happened to Mr. Highmore's rich uncle."—Chicago Tribune.

CONDENSED NEWS.

Several parties seek lands near Holdenville, I. T.

Beaver county, Oklahoma is to have a $10,000 court houes.

Farmers' Union will erect a cotton warehouse at Blooming Grove, Tex.

At Wanette, Okla., Miss Minnie Baker, seventeen years old, was burned to death.

The Disappointment.

May—It was too bad that Miss Trills disappointed the audience at the amateur performance. Elsie—But she didn't. She was able to appear after all. May—Yes, but it was generally supposed that she would not be able to appear.

WORK WEAKENS THE KIDNEYS

Doan's Kidney Pills Have Done Great Service for People Who Work in Bryan.

Most Bryan people work every day in some strained, unnatural position, bending constantly over a desk, riding on jolting wagons or cars, doing laborious housework, lifting, reaching or pulling, or trying the back in a hundred and one other ways. All these strains tend to wear, weaken and injure the kidneys until they fall behind in their work of filtering the poisons from the blood. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys, put new strength in bad backs.

Fred Ulrich, blacksmith, 16th St. and Avenue B, Temple, Texas, says: "Some three years ago I made a statement for publication recommending Doan's Kidney Pills, and confirmed it a year later. I stated that I had procured this remedy at a drug store, and had given it a trial, finding prompt relief from the backache which I believe was caused by the havy nature of my work. Doan's Kidney Pills greatly relieved the aching and pain, and up to the present time nothing has happened to change my opinion of the value and effctiveness of this remedy. I have learned of other cases here in Temple in which the most satisfactory results were obtained through the use of Doan's Kidney Pills."

Plenty more proof like this from Bryan people. Call at Emmel & Maloney's drug store and ask what their customers report.

For sale by all dealers. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

NO CURE, NO PAY.

How E. J. Jenkens Sells Hyomei, the Guaranteed Cure for Catarrh.

E. J. Jenkins has an unusual offer to make to our readers, one that will be of the greatest value to many.

For some years E. J. Jenkens has been watching the results from the use of Hyomei, a treatment for catarrh that cures by breathing medicated air, absolutely without any stomach dosing. The results have been so universally successful that he feels justified in making a public offer to treat the worst cas of catarrh in Bryan with the understanding that if Hyomei does not cure, the treatment will cost absolutely nothing.

The regular Hyomi outfit costs only one dollar, and consists of a neat pocket innaler that can be carried in the purse or vest pocket, a medicine dropper, and a bottle of Hyomei. If this is not enough for a cure extra bottles of Hyomei can be obtained for 50 cents.

E. J. Jenkins positively guarantee a cure, if Hyomei is used in accordance with directions, or he will refund the money.

We have been advised that agents in Bryan are selling picture frames, 16x20 for $10 and $15 each. Our frames are the best manufactured. 16x20 from $1 to $5 each. To pay over $5 for 16x20 size is submitting yourself to exorbitant prices. 128

Harvie Jordan, Editor-in-Chief, and Richard Cheatham, Business Mgr., have in their work as President and Secretary, respectively of the Southern Cotton Association, won victories in the interest of Cotton producers of more value to the country than any great victories ever won by a conquering army on the battlefield, and their work has added untold wealth to the Cotton States. The Cotton Journal will continue the battle for Southern supremacy and fair play. The public has for many years heard practically only one side of the Cotton story. It will be the mission of The Cotton Journal to tell the other side. Woolen Will Wear

IN ALL WEATHERS

Argue as they will, one fact remains: Cotton adulterated cloth will neither keep its shape nor wear under any conditions. Pure woolen cloth will. Our Stein-Bloch Smart Clothes are made of pure woolens, tested by the wool test, which is the beginning of all

Stein-Bloch Clothes

The only reason why cotton is substituted for wool in mercerized fabrics is to cheapen the goods. A house is no stronger than its foundation. So with clothes. Cheap fabrics mean cheap clothes; and no matter how shrewdly they are tailored, they will be untrustworthy. Stein-Bloch employ no mercerized or cotton adulterated fabrics. Their goods are pure caustic-tested wool, and the clothes made from them wear and keep their shape.

The Stein-Bloch Wool Test

The Stein-Bloch Wool Test consists of a boiling solution of water and caustic potash, the chemical action of which dissolves wool but not cotton. The two samples here shown were originally of the same length. the test proved one to be all wool, consuming the part immersed and leaving only the blackened edge. The other proved to be an adulteration containing a large per cent of mercerized cotton.

Stein-Bloch Suits

Kirschbaum Suits

$10.00 $12.50 $15.00

Kirschbaum Clothing Plant is the largest in the world, and these clothes from $10.00 to $15.00 have no equal. Give us a look, we can please you.

MONROE EDGE

We have sold 2000 acres of farm lands in the last few days, which is evidence of our ability in turning real estate.

We know it is a little unbecoming to boast, but you know every dog must do his own wagging, and thinking ours is duly entitled to a wag we haven't hesitated to give it one little shake.

We hardly understand why the investor invariably comes to us. But it is a known fact that he does.

We have had several thousand circulars printed, showing the good points about Bryan and Brazos County, and to meet the demand we expect in the near future we must increase our list of property for sale. If you are in the market for a home or have something to offer, come to see us. We have a demand for several places in Bryan to cost from $500.00 to $1000.00.

For list of farm lands see weekly papers published at Bryan.

ONE MINUTE

One Minute Cough Cure gives relief in one minute, because it kills the microbe which tickles the mucous membrane, causing the cough, and at the same time clears the phlegm, draws out the inflammation and heals and soothes the affected parts. One Minute Cough Cure strengthens the lungs, wards off pneumonia and is a harmless and never failing cure in all curable cases of Coughs, Colds and Croup.

Our little girl was unconscious from strangulation during a sudden and terrible attack of croup. I quickly secured a bottle of One Minute Cough Cure and gave her three doses half an hour apart. The croup was mastered and our little darling speedily recovered. I cannot praise One Minute Cough Cure too much for what it has done in our family.—A. L. Spafford, Postmaster, Chester, Mich.

FREE DISTRIBUTION.

House by Large Majority Decides to Retain the Practice.

Washington, May 2.—By a vote of 153 to 58 the house decided to continue the free distribution of garden and flower seeds. Many of the items in the agricultural bill broadening the scope of the bureau of chemistry and Dr. Wiley's department were eliminated on points of order, particularly those relating to the adulteration of food, condiments, drugs and beverages.

Considerable progress was made on the bill after the free seed proposition was out of the way.

Mr. Sherman of New York immediately after the approval of the journal of the house asked unanimous consent to take the Indian appropriation bill from the speaker's table, non-concur in the senate amendments and send the bill to conference. Mr. Williams, the leader of the minority, in a very quiet way, filed his usual objections, but withheld his right to speak, to hear a statement from Mr. Sherman, chairman of the Indian affairs committee, who said that the senate had added nearly $300,000 amendments to the bill and increased the amount carried by nearly $3,000,000. It was absolutely necessary, therefore, that the conferees be appointed as soon as possible, so that the points in disagreement might be considered.

Mr. Williams facetiously remarked a girl in Arizona had been asleep for nearly seven weeks, but on awakening found, to her disgust, that the statehood bill had been asleep a longer time than that, and he therefore would have to insist upon his objection. The bill will now have to be considered by the house.

Mr. Gaines of Tennessee arose to a question of personal privilege. He stated that he had been misrepresented by a newspaper which, by implication, charged him with unfair dealing with the house.

Mr. Dalzell wanted the article to which Mr. Gaines objected to be reported to the house so that the speaker might rule whether it was really a subject of personal privilege.

Mr. Gaines read from the article in question in which he was pictured waving aloft a large bundle of letters which he said came from constituents demanding seeds, but which, on examination, turned out to be public documents.

The speaker read from the manual that a criticism in a newspaper upon a representative was not a proper subject for personal privilege.

Mr. Gaines asked for five minutes to make a statement, which was granted him. He then launched forth into a speech of justification of his course of Monday, reading letter after letter from his constituents demanding free seeds.

The house by this time had become a bedlam. The speaker worked his gavel arm like a stone mason, but Mr. Gaines, above the roar of the house, above the satirical applause, was heard protesting for square dealing, and declaring that the poor and deserving of his district who wanted free seed must not be put down.

Mr. Shepard of Texas desired to give the members of congress the right of selection as to whether they would take garden seed of field seed, such as wheat, corn, oats, cotton seed, etc., but the chairman ruled the amendment out of order.

RIOTOUS SCENES.

Police Lost Control, and Had to Call For Soldiers.

Paris, May 2.—The revolution predicted for May day did not materialize, but there were serious disorders. About 1,000 arrests were made, among the number being the secretary of the Printers' union of Paris. Cavalry rescued, with drawn swords, foot guards, but in doing so their horses trampled upon and injured many persons on the streets of Paris.

At Marseille processions carrying red flags and creating violent disorder came in collision with the troops, and a number of persons were injured. At Bordeaux processions paraded the streets singing revolutionary songs, and the cavalry charged them, wounding many. At Lyons a crowd of manifestants attacked the street cars, breaking the windows, whereupon the dragoons charged the rioters, wounding a large number. There were lesser disturbances at many points.

Several bombs were discovered by the police early Wednesday morning at Paris.

An attempt was made to wreck a train at Rouen.

MARKETING OF PRODUCT.

This Was General Topic of Discussion of the Cotton Men.

Washington, May 2.—The general topic of discussion Wednesday by the international conference of cotton growers and manufacturers was the marketing of thep roduct, which embraced the questions of warehousing, stability of price and relations between the growers and manufacturers.

As on Tuesday, speculating in cotton was severely denounced. A. E. Calvin, president of the Farmers' Educational and Co-Operative Union, declared that it long had been the dream of cotton growers to abolish all intermediate agents, who levy toll unnecessarily on the product on its journey from the field to the factory. The grower, he said, is the constant and persistent foe of all forms and methods of cotton gambling. Violent fluctuations in the market, he contended, are quite as disturbing and unprofitable to the grower as to the spinner. He voiced what he said was the unanimous sentiment of southern growers to join any movement which promises to eliminate gambling from the cotton market, to reduce marketing expenses, to expedite delivery of cotton to spinner and give reasonable stability to the market price.

A proposition which met with some favor came from W. T. Davis of Texas. It was the urging of direct relations with manufacturers and suggested that manufacturers deal with an agent of the grower at the warehouse.

The discussion then took a general turn, English delegates expressing their pleasure at building of warehouses instead of warehousing cotton in the field.

Further opposition to the middleman came from W. H. Miller of Texas and E. B. Smith of Arkansas. The former, in reverting to the question of Mr. Jordan as to whta amount of cotton would be needed for 1906, said that it was not a matter for consideration so much as that growers will raise what they think they can sell.

Birmingham, Ala., May 2.—Delegates are arriving from all over the south to attend the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, which convenes at the First Methodist church. The Epworth League board held a session. Vice President Fairbanks will be a fraternal delegate to the conference from the Methodist Episcopal church. The session will last four weeks.

BY CARLOAD.

Strike Breakers Are Arriving at Mount Carmel In Large Numbers.

Mount Carmel, Pa., May 2.—There is intense bitterness of union miners against the constabulary.

All people who were shot during the rioting on Monday are alive, although several are expected to die. Despite the threats of citizens that another battle would result if any troopers entered the town, four squads of Captain Page's men made an appearance on the streets early Wednesday. They are all mounted and had carbines unslung as they rode slowly through the place. Hundreds of persons gazed on them with astonishment, as no one dreamed the constables would venture into town in such a small force. Troopers remained here about fifteen minutes and then proceeded to Locust.

Five carloads of strike breakers from Clearfield region arrived here early Wednesday and reported five additional caloads from the same region would reach here later in the day. Fourteen carloads of men from the soft coal region were run into the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron company's storage yard near Mahoney City. Cars containing strike breakers art fitted up so the men can live in them. Strike breakers are guarded by the constabulary.

REBUILDING PLANS.

Secretary Metcalf Can Inform Congress What Is Needed.

San Francisco, May 2.—At a conference held at eGneral Greely's headquarters plans for rebuilding of the gity with government aid was discussed. There were present besides General Greely, ames D. Phelan, J. E. Devine, Mayor Schmitz and Secretary of Comerce and Labor Metcalf. It was held that Secretary Metcalf might be able to carry back to Washington a comprehensive idea of the needls of the city and ideas of her leading men. In the discussion held no definite request was made nor any plan of action fully outlined, but the hope was expressed that the government might be induced to back the city with a bond issue of $200,000,000 for whatever sum is needed. In this matter, it is pointed out, San Francisco will be able to get money at a reasonable rate, and with cash on hand accomplish in four or five years what otherwise would require fifteen or twenty years' time and save borrowing money at a high rate of interest.

Fifty Chinese owners of property in old Chinatown decided they would build on sites where buildings were destroyed. Legal advisers of the Chinese, the Chinese consul general and vice consul gave it as their opinion that the owners and leasers of land in Chinatown cannot b deprived of the right to rebuild if they so desire.

Conditions of life are gradually becoming more normal in this city and the work of clearing up the wreck in preparation for building in downtown section going on more rapidly. Business is being rapidly resumed by retail tradesmen of every description throughout the destroyed section.

George Wiliman, chairman of the committee on retail trade, reports the following places of business open: Forty-four butchers, twenty-nine restaurants, twenty-two bakeries, twenty-two vegetable stands, seventy-one dairies, fifteen refreshment parlors, fifty-three groceries and seventy-one miscellaneous establishments, including tailors, plumbers, dry goods stores, druggists and cigar stands.

Firms located along the water front are doing a thriving business. Tuesday receipts showed a marked increase over the preceding day and prices of dairy goods and some lines of green goods are lower. The business of receiving and disposing of consignments is running along as smoothly as can be expected under the circumstances. In less than two weeks the garbage question will be disposed of. Inspection of Reduction works in Potero has been made, and it is reported outside 100 feet of tall chimneys and repairs to furnaces can be completed in ten days. Men were set to work Tuesday on these necessary repairs, and as soon as there can be established a force of draught so as to insure rapid combustion all refuse will be incinerated as in the past.

About forty city and county health officers held a conference regarding taking of sanitary precautions for keeping yellow fever and other contagious diseases out of Texas. The entire morning session was consumed by reading and discussion of a paper by City Health Officer Truehart of Galveston on "Mosquito Extermination: Its Bearing on Modern Quarantine."

A Bridge of Crocodiles.

A traveler writes of a port in northwestern India: "The great sight of Karachi is the sacred crocodile preserve at Magar Pir, some seven miles off. There are hot springs here which feed a shallow tank containing nearly a hundred crocodiles. The story, usually thought to be fictitious, of the Englishman who for a bet crossed the tank by jumping successively from the backs of these crocodiles is based on fact. The hero of this foolhardy feat was a certain Lieutenant Beresford, a friend of Sir R. F. Burton. When Burton and his companion were visiting the crocodiles' tank they noticed that these reptiles and certain islets of reeds happened to make an almost continuous bridge across the tank. This prompted the daring subaltern to hazard the feat of crossing by hopping from one crocodile to another. To the amazement of the spectators he succeeded in this apparently mad attempt. Sir Richard Burton had already successfully performed an equally daring feat. He managed to muzzle a crocodile by means of a lasso and then jumped on the reptile's back and enjoyed a somewhat zigzag ride."

Inside Your Bones.

People usually imagine that their bones are of solid mineral construction, without any feeling in them. As a matter of fact, there are blood vessels and nerves inside the bones just as there are outside. During amputation of a limb much more pain is felt when the bone is attacked than when the flesh is being cut through. Through the marrow which is inside the bones run the nerves and blood vessels, entering the bones from the flesh without by little holes. Nature adapts the bony structure of various animals to their habits in a very interesting manner. Sluggish creatures, like the sloth, have solid bones, whereas the bones of the deer and the antelope are comparatively light, so that they may run fast, and the leg bones of the ostrich are hollow. You will find in the bones of any skeleton the application of mechanical principles which have only become known to man through the processes of laborious and long considered invention.

A Finger Pillory.

The finger pillory is still preserved carefully in the parish church of St. Helen Ashby-de-la-Zouch and is thus described: "An ancient and rather singular curiosity is a finger pillory. This instrument seems to have been used for the punishment of disorderly persons during divine service. It consists of two upright posts about three feet high, which support a beam of nearly the same length, in which are bored holes of various dimensions, cut first horizontally, then perpendicularly, in order that the first joint of the finger may be inserted and the finger retained in an angular form. The culprit is then secured by bringing down over the holes another beam which is attached by a hinge at the end to one of the posts and fastened at the other by a lock."—London Academy.

Holding the Breath.

It is a physical impossibility for a man to kill himself by holding his breath. Individuals differ greatly in the length of time they can hold their breath, and what practice and determined effort, combined with natural great lung capacity, can do in this direction is shown by the long periods for which champion divers can remain under water. If a man succeeded in continuing to hold his breath in spite of the physical discomfort in which he had placed himself the result would simply be to induce a state of coma. When this state was reached nature would reassert herself, and the breathing functions would again resume full activity, preventing a fatal issue in spite of their owner's desire.

Mme. Scarron.

Mme. Scarron, afterward the famous Mme. de Maintenon, the wife of Louis XIV., was in her girlhood remarkably beautiful. She was dark, with piercing black eyes and wavy hair. In middle life her gravity of countenance and of deportment was considered quite extraordinary in that age of gayety. One of her contemporaries said that she did not smile once a year, and yet she was not gloomy, but only of a sedate habit of mind.

First say to yourself what you would be; then do what you have to do.—Epictetus.

A Monster God House.

In Mexico are found ruins of ancient Aztec teocallis, or "god houses," some of which are thousands of years old. One of these, near Cholula, is in the form of a truncated pyramid. Each side of the base of this pyramid is 1,423 feet, which is twice the length of the great pyramid of Egypt. The height of this Mexican wonder is 177 feet, and its base covers an area of forty-four acres.

Not There.

"Judge," said Mrs. Starvem to the magistrate who had recently come to board with her, "I'm particularly anxious to have you try this chicken soup."

"I have tried it," replied the magistrate, "and my decision is that the chicken has proved an alibi."—Philadelphia Press.

When the Raven Was Milk White.

According to Mohammedan belief, the ravens which Noah took with him on the ark were both pure white. When the ark had been riding the billows of the flood for thirty-three days one of the giraffes died, and the carcass was thrown overboard. No sooner had it struck the water than the ravens pounced upon it. For this Noah cursed them, and since that day they have been coal black.
